LAJOIE'S SLUGGERS
LOST TO SENATORSDespised Tailenders Furnished a Surprise Party.

M'CORMICK AS A SWATTIST

Made Hit in Tenth Inning That Scored Hill With Winning Run.

Washington, 2; Cleveland, 1.

Napoleon Lajoie and his band of Cleveland sluggers slugged all right yesterday, but the festive Senators also slugged a few, especially Barry McCormick, and the game went to Washington in the tenth inning by 2 to 1, after the spectators had thought it hardly possible that their pets could win an extra inning contest.

Two hits and two scores did the work in the tenth inning, and the Cleveland outfit looked about as happy as a Kansas joint after a visit from Carrie Nation. It was a hard game for the visitors to lose, and they were sore in mind and body.

Unexpected Hit.

McCormick's hit was somewhat unexpected, for as a swatter Barry is not in Class A, but with the bases full in the tenth he put out one that was of the revised list order and scored Hill.

Hess was given a chance against the Senators yesterday on the theory that the tailenders were easy meat and never could be any more, but the experiment was a failure, and the Blues will probably not take further liberties of that sort. Townsend was on the slab for the home folks, and once or twice showed symptoms of having one of those bad innings that have caused his team to lose so many games, but the Delaware Peach took a sudden brace at critical moments, and by neat work pulled himself out of holes.

Supported Well.

The battery was nobly supported by the team. Hill being the only offender in the error column, and the heavy hitting Napoleons were disgusted with the small returns from their seven slugs and three doubles. O'Neil continued his good sticking of the day before by getting a double and a single, while Hill and McCormick also got more than one safety apiece.

Lefty Herring was kept busy at first, but did not show up as well as the day before, his lack of experience in fast company against such hard hitters being evident on several occasions.

Records Broken

BY METHODISTS

Mount Pleasant Methodists took occasion on the White Lot yesterday afternoon to fatten their batting averages by making eighteen hits and burying the Mount Vernon outfit by 23 to 3, in seven innings, a new record for the Sunday School League.

With so much one-sided work the game was not much interesting than a soil survey report, but the Methodists enjoyed it immensely, as they were swelling their figures and adding to their chances for landing some of the individual prizes. Jimmie Field was so easy for the whites that it was a surprise to hit the ball, and every Methodist got at least one safety, while George Evans got four. The score:

MANAGER M'GRAW

Puts Screws on Manager of Giants for Refusing to Obey Orders of Umpire.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 25.—When the Pittsburgh and New York clubs lined up for action on Exposition Field on Tuesday afternoon the vast crowd wondered at the absence from the scene of battles Manager McGraw of the Giants.

The scrappy little general was not in sight when the game started. When the New Yorks arrived at the park Mc-Graw was with them, but he was not in uniform. During the morning he had received a telegram from President Pullham notifying him of his indefinite suspension for the part he took in the scenes of disorder during the last game with Pittsburgh in New York—the day he went into the tool box and refused to come out when ordered by Umpire

Johnstone to leave the field.

McGraw wanted to sit on the bench

Tuesday afternoon and accompanied his team when it went upon the playing field. Umpire Johnstone, however, had received a telegram from the league president and he declined to permit

New York manager to remain. McGraw tried to argue the point, but Johnstone was obdurate, and the leader of the Giants finally concluded that he was up against it and went into the grand stand, where he remained during the game.

St. Stephen's Institute defeated the team representing Woodward & Lothe White Lot yesterday by 13 to 5.

The game was devoid of interesting features, and from the tap of the gong the Rainmakers had everything their own way.

Barnes, who was on the rubber for the storemen, was the easiest thing imaginable for the Saints, who panned his poor play. Kidwell, who did the honors for St. Stephen's, pitched a good game, and with fine support secured him by his teammates, was almost invincible.

PITTSBURG PHIL A WINNER

Refuses to Take Blue Bird Tip and Backs Gamara—Hermis Seems in Good Shape.

SARATOGA, Aug. 25.—"Get away" is in the air today. The morning trains carried hundreds away. In the betting domains the stools of the layers were spaced out yesterday to make a showing, and their tale when the day was done was of the scarcity of business.

The fields averaged lighter than they have at any track this year. This is no reflection on the management, but more the desire of the best part of the army of turtles to get home and settled before the opening at Sheepshead Bay next Saturday. The lesson of the showing seems to be to end meetings on a Saturday. This carrying it over to the middle of the week is something the average racegoer cannot or will not get accustomed to. The officials of the club saved a couple of valuable stakes to keep some of the better grade here, but their efforts seem to have failed. The competitors for the races today were ordinary, and the same can be said of those that will go out tomorrow.

Gates Was Wrong.

John W. Gates and his followers were very much in evidence during the afternoon and especially just before the closing event. They had won well on Broadcloth in the Adirondack Handicap, and their tip was to get more on his stable mate, Blue Bird. In the closing event, in the early betting their commissioner remained in the background, and the price against Blue Bird climbed up untilly got busy, and when their money was all on 8 to 5 was the very best obtainable.

The colt showed prominently in the first half of the trip, then faded away.
